LIEUT. WINSLOW, AIRMAN, MISSING ON VESLE FRONT

With the American Army on the Aisne-Vesle front, Aug. 14.—Lieut. Allan Winslow, of Chicago, the first American trained aviator to shoot down a German airplane on the Toul front in April, disappeared during a flight north of the Vesle river and is believed to have been killed. Lieut. Winslow was escorting observation planes when he disappeared.

In spite of a kindly breeze, today threatened to be pretty nearly the hottest of the year, with the official temperature at 1 p. m. 95 and climbing. It was the hottest August 14 in the history of the local weather bureau.

To soothe the suffering populace the local forecaster announced that thunder showers this afternoon might result in a materially lessened temperature. These showers would continue through the night, he said, so that Thursday with westerly winds in prospect, would be somewhat cooler.

The business day opened at 8 o'clock with the mercury at 81, and every indication that records for the year were doomed. It advanced three degrees in the next hour and seven in two hours.

Freezing temperature of 32 degrees at White River, Ontario, last night, nipped crops and threatened considerable damage. The mercury, however, relented when it touched 32 and refused to venture furthed into the "danger zone."

Boston and Northfield, Vt., were the warmest places north of Galveston, Tex., and Key West, Fla., today with a temperature of 80 at 8 o'clock. It was but 82 at Key West and Galveston.

Was there a cool spot in Boston today?

Just take a stroll around the Frog Pond on the Common a day like this and get the answer.

Upward of one hundred youngsters found relief today in the waters of the Hub's historic basin. Standing under the fountain, clothed in "real" and home-made bathing suits, they defied the Weather Man to do his worst.

One little black-eyed youngster from the North End did "stunts" for the crowd that gathered to watch the fun.

"Can you swim," he was asked.

"Betcher!" came the answer.

"Are you cool!"

"Betcher life."

"I guess you're glad the Mayor said you could swim here, and you're coming up every hot day, aren't you?"

"You just betcher life," was the explanation accompanied by a grin which seemed a mile long.

Call Us "Yanks" Not "Sammies," Say Troops

Washington, Aug. 14.—American soldiers in France resent the nickname "Sammies," according to General March, who urges that the public refrain from using this term. The British have recognized the objection of our boys, and call them "Yanks," which is acceptable to the men. The French, General March added, do not give the name "Sammies" to the Americans, but think it a "fine name," and could not understand the objection to it.

Gen. March Tells of Gallantry Shown—McAndrew Commands 1st Field Army

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 14.—One American regiment has distinguished itself especially in the new Picardy offensive, General Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff, announced this afternoon, in his mid-weekly conference with representatives of the press.

General March identified the 131st Infantry of the Thirty-third Division, which has been officially reported to have captured three officers, 150 men and seven 105-calibre guns in the fighting at Chapilly.

The War Department received a dispatch today from General Pershing, General March announced, saying that the German counter-attack which drove our troops out of Fismette for a short period had been met by a counter-attack with the result that the Americans were again holding the town.

The Germans at the nearest point are now fifty miles from Paris, said the Chief of Staff.

The 28th Division, said General March, held a sector south of the Marne and southwest of Domans on July 15 and aided the 42nd (Rainbow) Division and the Third Regular Division in the passage of the Ourcq.

"This division," said the General, "had 400 casualties in twenty-four hours on July 30."

There are now thirty-one full divisions in France, he added.

The Chief of Staff formally announced the establishment of the United States first field army in France, and said it was commanded by Major General McAndrew.

FREIGHTER OUTRUNS RAIDER

Attacked Off Fire Island by Diver and "Mother" Craft —6 Torpedoes Miss

New York, Aug. 14.—There was an unconfirmed report at the waterfront today that the Ward line steamer Morro Castle, en route to an Atlantic port from a Southern port, has been sunk by a German submarine. Ward line officials had no information of the vessel's destruction. The Morro Castle, a 6,004-ton vessel, carried passengers and a cargo.

By International News Service.

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 14.—A bitter fight lasting nearly three hours, followed by a chase, in which a British freighter eluded a German submarine and a vessel believed to have been the mother ship of U-boats in American waters, was related this afternoon by members of the crew of the steamship which reached here safely.

The gun duel took place forty-five miles off Fire Island. Half a dozen torpedoes were fired at the freighter, most of which were exploded by gunfire from the vessel before they could strike the ship. The freighter's exceptional speed saved her, the crew declared.

After the vessel exhausted her ammunition, the captain ordered "full speed ahead" and when the steamship was about 25 miles away from the American coast the submarine was fully four miles behind, and it gave up the chase.

The captain said he did not think his gunners hit the submarine, which continually submerged and returned to the surface. The appearance of the vessel which helped the U-boat in the battle led the captain to believe it was a mother ship of German submersibles.

The diver started the engagement at a range of about three miles and sent two shells across the freighter's bows to call a halt. The Britisher's reply was the retort of her own fore and after guns. Then both vessels began pounding away at each other.

For a time it was a running fight, but the British ship reduced speed in order to aid the aim of her gunners and her shells began popping and splashing close to the submarine.

SENATOR GALLINGER IS REPORTED DYING

Franklin, N. H., Aug. 14.—United States Senator Jacob H. Gallinger is believed to be dying at the hospital here, to which he was recently removed from his Summer home at Salisbury Heights. He has not been in good health since his return from Washington last month. He is being attended by Dr. Charles W. Adams. Senator Gallinger is 83 years old.

Haig's Line Advanced East of Meteren; Foe Repulsed

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 14.—The British line has been advanced slightly east of Meteren (on the Flanders front) the War Office announced today. There was artillery activity, but no infantry actions on the battle line during the night, Field Marshal Haig reported.

Local attacks were delivered by the Germans in the Dickebusch sector (Flanders front), but were repulsed.

The text of the War Office statement follows:

"Hostile artillery has been active during the night on the battlefront. No infantry action is reported. At midday yesterday, local hostile attacks in the Dickebusch sector were repulsed.

"During the night the enemy artillery has shown considerable activity in this neighborhood and also against our positions northwest of Kemmel.

"We secured a few prisoners during the night in a successful raid in the neighborhood of the Eyette. In the Vieux Berquin

Copenhagen Reports Many Ships in Action After Encounter in Skagerack Straits

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 14.—Heavy cannonading, lasting two hours, was heard off the Skagerack Monday morning, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen today.

Later a great number of warships was seen with their guns in action farther to the south, the dispatch added.

The Skagerack lies between Denmark and Norway. It is possible that the gun firing reported by Copenhagen took place during the fight between light British naval forces and German aircraft off the west Frisian coast.

The British Admiralty stated that the British were attacked by German aircraft while on patrol duty. According to the Admiralty announcement, the fight took place on Sunday, but it is possible that there was a confusion of time in the Exchange Telegraph dispatch.

A Zeppelin was shot down during the battle.

150,000 Bolsheviki in Battle Raging on Volga

By International News Service.

Amsterdam, Aug. 14.—A battle in which a Soviet army (Bolshevik) of 150,000 men is engaged is raging on the Mid-Volga River around Sembirsk, said a dispatch from Moscow today.

The Volga fleet controlled by the Soviets has seized all the vessels of the Czecho-Slavs.

DENY WILSON PLANS A VISIT TO EUROPE

Washington, Aug. 14.—President Wilson is contemplating no trip to Europe. This was stated emphatically today in sources close to the White House when it became known that Deputy Maurice Damour, writing in the Paris Journal, had said the American executive would soon go oversesa. There is a hard and fast custom that no President during his term of office, shall leave the country and it has always been strictly adhered to, it was pointed out.

ASSURES FISHING CRAFT OF NAVAL PROTECTION

Admiral Benson, ranking officer of the United States navy, has assured a representative of James J. Phelan, assistant food administrator for New England that everything possible will be done to protect fishermen from U-boats. Kenneth Fowler of the Division of Fisheries of the United States Food Administrator's office, interviewed Admiral Benson. It was made clear that a goodly portion of the fish industry was affected by the submarine menace and the admiral acted at once.

NEW MEN OF 21 ARE CALLED

All Reaching Majority From June 5 to Aug. 24 Register on Latter Date

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 14.—All men who shall have attained the age of 21 years between June 5 and August 24 were called upon today, in a proclamation by President Wilson, to register for draft on the latter date. The hours of registration will be from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m., at all local boads.

The object of registering twenty-one-year-old men for this period of two months and twenty days is to keep Class 1 full during the Fall months, it was explained by General Crowder. It is expected that approximately 150,000 men will be registered on August 24 and of this number at least half will qualify for military duty.

The same method of registering the men will be followed as that prevailing when the first registration of 21-year-old men took place on June 5 last. A day for registration in the territories of Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico will be named in a later proclamation.

As required by the regulations, every local board having jurisdiction in a city of 30,000 population or over will probably cause the mayor thereof to be notified of the place or places designated for registration, while every local board having jurisdiction in a county, parish or similar unit will cause the clerk thereof to be similarly notified.

Any person who, on account of illness, is unable to present himself for registration, may apply on or before the day of registration at the office of any local board for instructions as to how he may register by agent.

GERMANS SUPREME IN AIR, SAYS CONGRESSMAN

Washington, Aug. 14. — Germany holds supremacy of the air on all American sectors of the front, Representative Reavis of Nebraska declared today, upon his return from a month's tour of the American sectors in France.

"The effect of the German supremacy is disastrous," he said. "The only thing the American troops fear is a German bombing plane. They are frankly critical of the failure to give them better aerial protection. The commander of one sector told me he had only 'washed out' or discarded French machines with which to protect his men."

FIRST WOMAN SWORN IN AS MARINE RESERVIST

Washington, Aug. 14.—The first woman to join the United States Marine Corps Reserve has been sworn in here. She is Private Opha M. Johnson of this city. Major T. H. Low did the honors in swearing her in. She has been assigned to look after the young women soon to be enrolled in the Marine Corps Reserve as clerks at headquarters. These women will release many enlisted men. Miss Johnson was formerly attached to the Civil Service Commission.

German Surprise Attacks Frustrated by Yankees Along the River Vesle

Paris, Aug. 14—Heavy artillery duels between the Avre and Oise rivers were reported by the French War Office today.

On the Vesle River (where Americans are fighting) the Germans attempted surprise attacks, all of which failed.

The text of the communique follows:

"The artillery was active on both sides between the Avre and the Oise Rivers last night, particularly in the sectors of Roye and Conchy-Les-Pots.

"On the Vesle River surprise attacks attempted by the enemy were without result.

"Prisoners were captured by the French as the result of incursions into the German lines in the region of Mesnil-les-Hurlus.

"Elsewhere the night was calm."

American Bridgehead Heavily Shelled; Prussian Guards Still Face Yankees

By HENRY G. WALES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army on the Aisne-Vesle Front, Aug. 14.—German artillery has been extremely active against the American bridgehead position north of the River Vesle during the past twenty-four hours.

The Prussian Guard division facing the Americans has not been transferred from the Vesle front despite the activities in the Montdidier region.

Aerial observers report that the enemy is establishing barbed wire entanglements and organizing strong and elaborate defensive positions.

German batteries emplaced north of the Aisne River are now registering on the new American positions.

Despite violent fire from German high angle guns, American airmen have succeeded in making numerous photographs of the enemy positions. German fighting planes tried unsuccessfully to drive away the American observers.

During the sky battles attending this work, American two-seater machines shot down two German single seaters.

Giant Krupp in U. S. Booty Shipped to Gov. McCall

By International News Service.

With the American Army on the Vesle, Aug. 14.—A Krupp howitzer, which an American unit captured at Trugoy on July 22, has been shipped to Governor McCall of Massachusetts.

It was the biggest gun the Americans had taken, although numerous field pieces and six-inch guns had been captured early in the offensive. This artillery is still being used against the Germans, the Americans firing the ammunition they captured in their sweep northward from the Marne.

Nine thousand rounds have been fired against the Germans from one three-inch piece taken from the Teutons.

Germans Fighting on Line to Which They Fell Back After Marne Battle in 1914

The Germans, driven back by the fierce allied offensive in Picardy, are fighting today in the entrenchments of 1914, occupied by them after the first battle of the Marne and held until the great Somme retreat in 1917.

Capture of the Lassigny Heights, unofficially reported, gives the French command of the city and the entire district to the north.

The fall of Lassigy will have serious consequences for the Germans. The Noyon, Roye and Chaulnes line will become untenable and the Germans must fall balck. The fall af Lassigny will also mean the extension of the battlefront from the Oise to the Aisne at Soissons.

This would prove a menace to the German lines on the Vesle. War experts say the Picardy battle is approaching a critical stage. Either the allied advance will be halted or the Germans will be forced back to or beyond the Hindenburg line.

Woburn Tax Rate $20.80

Woburn's tax rate for 1918 is $20.80, a reduction of 40 cents, according to announcement of Mayor Gray today. This is the fourth consecutive reduction, totalling $5.20. Good management and the pay-as-you-go policy are given as the reason. The increase in property valuation is $732,292.

KING DECORATES YANKEES FOR BRAVERY

By BERT FORD,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the British Army on the Picardy Battle Front, Aug. 13 (10 a. m.)—For the first time in history United States soldiers were personally decorated by the King of England today.

Honors were conferred upon General John J. Pershing, the American commander-in-chief; General Tasker H. Bliss, four lieutenants and fifteen soldiers, amidst impressive ceremonies.

General Pershing was decorated with the insignia of the grand commander of the Order of the Bath while the decoration of the Order of St. Michael was conferred upon General Bliss.

The decorations were in recognition of bravery shown by the Americans when they helped the British capture Hammel from the Germans on July 24.

A rousing reception was given King George by the doughboys. There were flags, music and cheers and an imposing detachment of American soldiers and British officers stood by while the ceremonies were in progress.

The Yankees stood in line while the King fastened the medals upon the lapels of their coats, afterwards shaking them heartily by the hand and congratulating them upon their bravery and patriotism.

Nine of the honored Americans were in the hospital, where they received their insignia.

Afterwards a number of Australians were decorated.

The nineteen Americans of the rank of lieutenant and downward who were honored were:

Lieutenant Frank Schraw, Lieutenant Albert G. Jefferson, Second Lieutenant Harry Yagle, Second Lieutenant Michael Komerowski, Sergeant James E. Krum, Private Christopher Keane, Corporal Thomas A. Pope, Corporal Andrew C. Shabinger, Corporal Lester C. Whitson, Corporal Raymond H. Powell, Private William F. Linsky, Private Harry Shelly, Corporal Albert C. Painsipp, Private Fred E. Wilkins, Sergeant Frank A. Kosjane, Corporal John De Smidt, Sergeant A. Ernard, Corporal H. Seyburt, and Corporal J. Swerede.

All were from the Middle West, chiefly in the region of Chicago.

The King received all of the correspondents attached to British army groups, according to their nationality.

He wore the uniform of a British field marshal with spurs and tan gloves.

I was among those presented to him and he shook my hand with a firm grip at both the opening and close of the meeting. The King was in splendid health and spirits. He has a merry, kind eye and close cropped hair and beard.

King George was found by the Americans to have a keen sense of humor and was surprisingly informal and keenly alive to world developments. He was enthusiastic over the American army and the war spirit of the United States.

TRAWLER ROUTS U-BOAT NEAR THIS PORT

Sea Viper, After Firing, Fears Fishing Vessel Would Ram Him and Submerges

No hits, however, were obtained, the captain says, but he declares the gunnery of the submarine was much inferior to that of his own crew.

The battle was waged for an hour when a steamship of considerable size made her appearance and deliberately threw herself between the British ship and the submarine.

Trawler Routs Sea Diver by Threat to Ram Her in Fight Off Highland Light

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 14.—How an American steam trawler, fired upon by a German submarine, caused the raider to submerge by attempting to ram her, was told by the captain of the vessel, which put in here today.

The encounter took place only six miles off Highland Light. This is the nearest point to the coast reached by any U-boat since the raids were begun by the Germans a few weeks ago.

The trawler was on her way to Georges Banks to fish when the raider suddenly emerged about 100 yards away and fired without warning at the trawler, according to the captain's story.

7 Lives Believed Lost When U-Boat Sinks U. S. Vessel Off Jersey

By International News Service.

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 14.—Seven lives are believed to have been lost when the American steamship Frederick R. Kellogg was sunk by a German submarine last night off the New Jersey coast.

This information was received here today with the word that thirty-five members of the crew of the vessel were rescued by the steamship Huron of the Clyde Line, while northward bound. The survivors were in open boats.

The survivors reaching here today said the Kellogg was struck by the torpedo at 6:10 p. m. last night thirty miles off Ambrose Light.

35 Survivors of Sunken Oil Tanker Kellogg Reach Port; 7 Believed Killed

By International News Service.

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 14.—Thirty-five members of the crew of forty-two men of the oil steamship Frederick R. Kellogg, torpedoed and sunk at 6:30 p. m. last night, 30 miles south of Ambrose Light, reached here today with stories of how the vessel was destroyed.

The survivors were picked up by the steamship Huron of the Clyde line from 25 boats at 9:25 last night. The seven men still missing were in the engine room of the Kellogg and are thought to have been killed when the torpedo struck the ship.

The Kellogg was a new tank liner of 7,127 tons gross register, 425 feet long, with a beam of 57 feet, valued at more than $1,500,000, under command of Captain C. H. White. She carried a cargo of approximately 70,000 barrels of crude oil. The ship was owned by the Pan-American Petroleum Transport Company of Los Angeles and was launched a year ago this month at Oakland.

Captain White said the torpedo struck the Kellogg unexpectedly, that there was no warning whatever and that there had been no sight of a submarine. He declared the explosion was so terrific that the steamship sank within three minutes.

There were two boats lowered, into which the crew jumped, but so rapidly did the steamer sink that one of the men who was below decks found himself waist deep in water when he reached the upper deck and was carried down again by the suction.

WAR SUMMARY

By FRANK CHARLTON,
International News Service Cable Editor.

Heavy artillery duels were reported from the Picardy battlefront today, but neither the British War Office nor the French War Office made any mention of infantry operations in that zone.

The activity of the big guns apparently centred between the Avre and Oise Rivers where the French were unofficially reported on Tuesday to have advanced their lines, putting the entire flank of the Germans in peril.

French troops moved closer to Lassigny and Roye over a wide front, taking high ground which has shaken the whole German front in that district. The Germans began the evacuation of their trench positions in the Oise Valley, giving up much ground that they gained in their drive towards Compeigne in June. Further progress for the French west of the Oise River has been made much easier by the capture of high ground which affords a scree n for artillery that can now deluge the German key positions at will.

While the British, French and Americans consolidate their newly won positions and move up their guns and ammunition, the Germans are evidently preparing for a further retreat. Large fires are observed far in the German rear and they are apparently devastating the country just as they did before the final phase of their retreat from the Marne.

"I never realized what a soap could do for the skin until my mate at camp gave me a cake of Lifebuoy."

Camp life is the real test of soap

A soldier must keep healthy—his skin must always be in good condition

After a day's training, the soldier comes in chafed, sore—covered with perspiration. This perspiration often irritates the skin where it is chafed, because perspiration contains acids and waste matter from the system. In fact, the acids in perspiration are so strong that they turn green cloth yellow and blue cloth red. Because of its moisture, moreover, perspiration easily collects dust and dirt.

When the soldier washes with Lifebuoy, its rich, creamy lather not only cleanses his skin thoroughly—but it carries into the pores a most healthful antiseptic. This soothes the sore skin—counteracts perspiration acids and impurities—prevents irritations—keeps the skin clear—smooth—radiant with health.

Because Lifebuoy keeps the skin in such fine condition, it is one of the most popular soaps in United States training camps.

Your skin needs this protection every day

Every day, in ordinary life, your skin throws off about a quart of perspiration. Every day, your skin picks up dust and dirt.

Protect your skin from these acids and impurities—keep it healthy. Nowadays the greatest health authorities are teaching the value of prevention.

By giving your skin the proper daily care, you can prevent irritations—you can keep your skin in fine condition.

Begin using Lifebuoy today. See how its creamy, antiseptic lather refreshes—cleanses—protects. See how it keeps your skin clear—smooth—glowing with health!

The odor tells you why

The "health" odor in Lifebuoy is found in no other soap. It is not a perfume—not the odor of a medicine—but a pure, hygienic odor that tells you instantly why the soap benefits your skin. One whiff of Lifebuoy and you realize why it cleanses so thoroughly—why it purifies and protects—why it improves your skin.

Try a cake of Lifebuoy. Use it for the face, hands, bath—and watch your skin improve.

CHARGE KILLING OF GIRL IN FALL RIVER ENDED BRIEF HONEYMOON

TRAGEDY VICTIM BRIDE OF WEEK

Reward of $100 Offered for Arrest of Dead Girl's Husband

Fall River, Aug. 14.—Annie Donovan Brown was strangled to death in the room she occupied with her husband of less than a week, according to the police officers who have been working on the river death case here. Following her death her body was kept in a trunk in the room for twenty-four hours.

Then followed its dismemberment and gradual disposition by being thrown, in small bundles, into the Taunton River and Mt. Hope Bay. Captain William H. Proctor and State Detectives Timothy Murphy and Michael Fleming feel absolutely certain of these facts. They have applied for a warrant charging Will Brown, otherwise known as William C. Brown, with her murder.

With the identification established, the officers next sought a warrant from Judge Hannify charging Brown with murder. This was granted and immediately the task of circularizing the country began. The State officers believe that by means of these circulars and a $100 reward offered for information locating him his arrest will follow.

As was told exclusively in the AMERICAN yesterday Brown sustained wounds while fighting in the Spanish war. Two bullet wounds in his left thigh permanently lamed him and rendered him incapable of further military service. He had attempted in March to enlist in the Canadian engineering forces.

He was accepted in Boston, but the physical examination at St. John's, Quebec, the engineers' encampment, resulted in his rejection for duty. Then it was that he returned to Boston, and subsequently to Fall River, after which he and Annie Donovan appeared in Peterboro, N. H.

Then followed his return to Fall River, marriage to the girl, and taking up of residence at No. 110 Cedar street. That was on June 29, and within another week Annie Donovan Brown had breathed her last. Twelve days later the Taunton River gave up the first portions of her body, and on July 20 Brown left Fall River.

BURNS DENIES CHARGE THAT FISH IS HELD UP

James J. Burns, Jr., vice-president of the Bay State Fishing Company, denies the accusation of Maurice Shaw, secretary and treasurer of the New England Fish Exchange, that the Bay State Company holds back catches of fish to force the market price up.

Mr. Burns says that the company has six of its steel steamers engaged in fishing. The other six are used as mine sweepers by the navy. Were they fishing, Mr. Burns says, the production would be increased 20,000,000 pounds. He cites the submarine menace as one of the causes for a slack fish production at this time.

O'BRIEN VISITS CANADA TO BOOM K. C. WAR FUND

William H. O'Brien, chief of the telephone section of the Public Service Commission, left for Halifax, N. S., today to represent Massachusetts at the Knights of Columbus War Fund drive. Mr. O'Brien will be the principal speaker at the opening of the campaign at the Halifax Public Gardens tomorrow. He will remain in Nova Scotia about a week, speaking at meetings throughout the province. Mr. O'Brien will be joined in a few days by John McAcy, who is in charge of the Knights of Columbus hut on the Common.

PREFERS STEPMOTHER TO HER OWN FATHER

On complaint of her father, Frederick Sharpe, that she was a stubborn child, nineteen-year-old Frances Sharpe of Waltham street, Boston, appeared before Judge Churchill, in Dorchester District Court today, and pleaded that she preferred to live with her stepmother rather than with her father. Pending probate proceedings the case was continued to September 18.

ASSESSED $100 FOR STEALING ELECTRICITY

Henry Schultz, a dealer in musical instruments, phonographs and music, was before Judge Day in the South Boston Court today on three counts having to do with the alleged larceny of electricity. He was found guilty and the fines assessed aggregated $100. He appealed and was held for the next term of the Superior Court.

"COLOR JAGS" ASSIST BEATRICE IRWIN IN KEEPING HEALTHY DURING SUMMER

Miss Beatrice Irwin, color specialist, reading by one of her "light filters" over an electric bulb. The model is called "Orientale," and is hand painted in "sedative" colors, good for nervous people. For certain troubles Miss Irwin prescribes "recuperative" colors, and for some, "stimulant" tones.

By KATHERINE BROOKS.

Do you sleep badly and lie awake nights?

Are you nervous and easily tired?

Do you have to wear glasses and does your head ache?

Your color environment is wrong. Tell Beatrice Irwin.

Miss Irwin is a color specialist. She is also a poet, an artist, an expert craftsman and the pioneer of a new science. Color is to her not merely a series of ether vibrations. It is a world by itself with which the human world is sometimes in sympathy and sometimes not.

If the vibrations that find their visible expression in a certain color, supplement the vibrations that emanate from the temperament of an individual, that color and that individual are congenial and should be associated.

RIGHT COLORS AID HEALTH.

To put it more simply, you must be surrounded with colors that agree with you, just as you must eat food that agrees with you. Otherwise, you will have trouble.

More than this: there is nourishment in color, and there are curative properties in the rays of the spectrum. Dipsomaniacs have been helped, Miss Irwin says, and vigor restored to a shriveled arm.

Why not? Everybody knows that the "ultra-violet" rays are used to cure and restore. Why not the visible and ordinary colors, then, as well?

At Wauwinet, Nantucket, where Miss Irwin has been spending her vacation, she goes on "color jags." So does everybody. There is so much color there that one can hardly be temperate about it. But Miss Irwin discriminates. For example, there are all kinds of blue. If her nerves need a rest, there is the sedative blue of a dull sea. If, on the other hand, she needs a spur, there is the stimulant blue of an August sky at noonday. If she is hungry—

But let her tell it.

"You will laugh at this," she told me, "but there is nourishment in color. Down here I don't eat half what I do in New York."

RAYS AS STIMULANTS.

I found her, a sight for sore eyes (color can cure sore eyes, understand, so this expression is literal)—dressed in a white skirt, an orchid mauve blouse smocked with purple, and a string of amber beads.

"What kind of a color is that?" I asked, putting an inquisitive finger on the orchid mauve.

"Stimulant," she answered.

"And the beads?"

"Also stimulant. Color has one of three influences upon us—sedative, curative or stimulant. It has always one of these effects on our respiration, and through the respiration, on the physical and nervous organism.

"The sedative colors induce deeper respiration; the recuperative colors, shallower, but more balanced respiration; while the stimulant colors quicken the respiration.

"The development of a color sense by means of definite education will do as much for the mental and nervous development of the race as physical culture has done for it in the past. That is an extreme statement, but I will stand by it. I know what can be done, for I have seen it thoroughly tested. I could tell you of numberless cases.

"In order to understand color and its properties, we should study the life of color. It has a life of its own. We are too apt to think of color as something merely pleasing to the eye.

"I have known of cases of eye strain which have been permanently cured by proper illumination. One young man had worn glasses for ten years. When he came to work in a room which was properly lighted, he left off his glasses after a while, and has never had to put them on again. Everybody knows, of course, that bad lighting is responsible for eye trouble, then why do they not apply the right remedy? Because few people understand or take the trouble to study color therapy."

There are, Miss Irwin explained, three aspects to her work: the teaching, the craft side, and the aesthetic. Under the second head comes the science of illumination, and with this is allied the curative and corrective processes. A great deal of sickness, eye strain and nervousness is caused by bad lighting in homes and offices. Not only does inadequate light put a strain on the eyes, but uncongenial colors and broken, inartistic decoration irritate the nerves.

Daniels Will Seize Houses Unless Rent Profiteering Stops

Bath, Me., Aug. 14.—Rent profiteering will not be tolerated by Secretary Daniels of the Navy, according to a statement by him in a letter to Major Drake apropos of an eviction case here. Unless this practice on the part of owners and landlords stops instantly the houses in question are liable to be commandeered by the government, Daniels declares.

The Secretary's order is the result of the refusal of Sheriff Oliver to evict the family of Stillman Moon from the premises occupied by them at No. 739 Washington street, and owned by Christo Adams and John Stephen. Moon had been paying $7 a month for four rooms, but was recently called upon to pay $5 a week for each room, making a monthly total of more than $80. Called upon to evict the family, Sheriff Oliver refused to do so, and has been summonsed to appear in court to show cause why he should not obey the summons.

'BIENNIAL' BILL IS PASSED BY CONVENTION

Proposed Amendment Would Have State Officers Chosen Every Two Years

The Constitutional Convention today, by a vote of 117 to 108, passed to be engrossed the proposed constitutional amendment providing for biennial elections of all State officers, but retaining the annual sessions of the Legislature.

Organized labor delegates in the convention, supported by Josiah Quincy, James H. Brennan and Judge Murley of East Boston, protested that the biennial elections would remove the officials too far away from the people. Advocates of the proposed new system argued against the expense and inconvenience of annual elections.

The matter is expected to be fought out again on the next stage, when the convention will decide whether to submit the amendment to the people for their acceptance or rejection.

The convention defeated the wide-open amendment granting the Legislature full power over the hours, wages and working conditions of labor. The vote was 68 to 120.

The amendment providing for a budget system, with the power for the Governor to veto specific items in the budget, was passed without opposition.

The stage is being set for the Convention to conclude its work next week.

CHANGES ORDERED AMONG RECRUITING MISSION MEN

Orders were received today at the British and Canadian Recruiting Mission at No. 44 Bromfield street, from the headquarters in New York, directing that a number of changes be made in the staff of the mission. Changes are being made in every depot of the mission in the United States, and many Canadian officers are to return to Canada. Most of the sub-depots, including the ones at Portland, Me.; Manchester, N. H.; Haverhill, Lynn, Worcester, Springfield, and Pittsfield, Mass., are to be closed, and the men in charge of them sent back to Canada.

Arlington Tax Rate Drops

The 1918 tax rate for Arlington will be $24.20 on each $1,000, a drop of $1.30 over the 1917 rate of $25.50.

Alligator Caught in Crystal Lake, Newton

Capture of a two-foot alligator in Crystal Lake, Newton Centre, has stirred speculation as to how the reptile came there. The catch was made with a net by a workman in the employ of an ice company.

Crystal Lake has been a storm centre for some time, owing to a dispute over swimming in its waters. There was at one time a bath house at the lake, which was removed. Nearby residents have made strenuous objection to having the lake used for bathing purposes. Other residents, and especially the children, have contended their right to swim there, and various petitions have been circulated to restore the bathing privilege.

One solution of the alligator mystery is that the reptile was placed there to frighten bathers away.

MARKET KEEPS UP SPIRIT OF BUOYANCY

Baldwin Locomotive Most Prominent and Tobacco Stocks Are Active

The market continued to advance today with Baldwin Locomotive prominent. Opening at 95 it rose to 96⅝, up 1⅝.

Tobacco stocks were active. United Cigar Stores started at 102⅛, and jumped to 104, up 1⅞; Sumatra gained 1, at 131½; and Tobacco Products ¾, at 72¾.

Rails showed fractional advances, but Reading after gaining ⅝, lost ⅛, at 90⅞. Union Pacific advanced to 125⅝, up ¾; and St. Paul, gained 1 point at 49⅝.

United Steel opened at 112¼, and rose to 112⅝, up ⅜; Crucible gained 1, at 69¾; Bethlehem B, ½, at 84¾; and Republic Steel, ½, at 93⅛.

Mexican Petroleum selling at 102⅝, was up 1⅜.

Small gains were scored by American Locomotive, 67⅝; Distillers, 59¼; Marine pfd., 98⅝; American Smelting, 79; and Southern Pacific, 88. Western Union jumped 2⅝, to 80¼.

Coppers were quiet and firm. Anaconda sold unchanged at 66⅞, and Inspiration up ⅛, at 52¼ but there was not much activity.

The Boston exchange was strong. New Haven at 43, and American Telephone 93¼, were the most active stocks and were up 1¼ each.

Fairbanks, 47¾, and United Shoe 39½, showed a gain of ¼ each. Century Steel sold 14⅛, up ⅛, and Swift & Company, 113, was unchanged.

The market softened at midday. Rails became irregular, Reading losing 1⅛, at 89⅞, and Union Pacific ¾, at 124⅜.

United State Steel lost ½, at 111½; Anaconda ⅛, at 66⅝, and Inspiration ½, at 52.

In Boston: Fairbanks became active and rose to 49½, up 2 points.

MYSTERIOUS LIGHT IN SKY SHOOTS UPWARD

Dorchester people are wondering whether they saw a new comet, a lighted airplane, or a shooting star, last night about 9 o'clock. Persons who saw the object say that it started almost from the horizon and climbed upwards finally disappearing from view. It was very bright and had a tail like a comet. It was moving very quickly, however, and upward instead of downwards. It is possible that it was an illusion due to atmospheric conditions.

WAR FUND OF 15 MILLION FOR Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. Henry P. Davison Heads Campaign Committee to Raise Money

Portland, Me., Aug. 14.—At the second day's session of the National Board of the Y. W. C. A. Woman's War Work Council here today, Mrs. Henry P. Davison of New York was named as chairman of the campaign Committee to raise $15,000,000 for the war work of the Young Woman's Christian Association.

Mrs. Davison will co-operate with John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who has been made chairman of the Young Men's Christian Association, one hundred thousand dollar drive.

Mrs. Harold Peabody, of Boston, was named as New England director of the campaign and State chairman for the other five New England States were chosen as follows:

Maine, Mrs. John F. Thompson, Portland; New Hampshire, Mrs. Charles P. Bancroft, Concord; Vermont, Mrs. Milton Chittenden, Burlington; Rhode Island, Mrs. R. H. I. Goddard, Providence; Connecticut, Mrs. E. A. Burkland, New Haven.

The following cablegram, drafted at yesterday's session, was ratified and sent today:

"To the allied women's mass meeting in Paris from the National War Work Council of the Y. W. C. A. assembled in Portland, Me., Canada represented, with representatives of women's patriotic organizations all over New England sending sympathetic greetings to all women in war service in Paris:

"Today we stand united in a common purpose to win a righteous war, to bind up wounds inflicted by war, and to realize the national ideals for which our men of the allied nations are making the supreme sacrifice.

"Inspired and strengthened by your example, ew pledge you a comradeship of loyal service in all your work for our armies, in your effort to interpret to one another the women of the allied nations.

"We will do our utmost to enlist women of America in this united effort to establish liberty and justice throughout the world."

DOCTORS WILL BE MOBILIZED FOR WAR

Women as Well As Men to Be Organized in Volunteer Service Corps

Washington, Aug. 13.—Selective service on a voluntary basis is to be extended to the physicians of the United States.

Under a plan announced today by Dr. Franklin Martin, chairman of the general medical board, Council of National Defence, the medical men and women of the country are to be mobilized by the Volunteer Medical Service Corps. This organization is authorized by the Council of National Defence and approved by President Wilson.

The extended scope of the Volunteer Medical Service Corps provides for the enrollment of every legally qualified physician, including women physicians, holding the degree of doctor of medicine from a legally chartered medical school, without reference to age or physical disability, who is not now in the service of the government.

Members of the corps will be divided into three classes:

1—Fit to fight men, under 40.
2—Reserves, under 55.
3—Home forces, over 55.

Reserves will consist of those who may be called upon for the army, navy, public health service and civilian service when necessity requires.

The home forces are those who are able to do civilian service only.

INTERCHANGEABLE FARE BOOKS READY TUESDAY

Washington, Aug. 14.—Beginning next Tuesday, passenger mileage books, interchangeable and good on any railroad, will be placed on sale, and will be accepted in payment of passenger fares on trains, in exchange for tickets and for extra baggage charges. They will not be good, however, for Pullman charges. There will be two books, one with 1,000 coupons, each coupon worth three cents, or one mile of travel to sell for $30, with an additional war tax of $2.40 and another for 500 coupons selling at $15, with $1.20 added for the war tax.

Case Against Bowler Nol Prossed by Pelletier

John Bowler, wealthy Worcester brewer, who was charged with threatening bodily harm to Dr. William C. Spencer, an aged Brookline physician, and who received a three months' sentence in the lower courts, has been freed by District Attorney Pelletier. The district attorney announced today that the case against Bowler had been nol prossed.

Dr. Spencer testified before the Municipal Court that for more than a year he had been receiving threatening letters, telegrams and telephone messages. Bowler was arrested in the South Station following the completeion of one of these telephone talks. Former Attorney-General Herbert Parker appeared as counsel for him before the district attorney.

It is understood that the decision of Mr. Pelletier was reached following a conference in which Mr. Parker was a party. It is understood that Dr. Spencer assented to the action of the district attorney.

CHARLESTOWN MILK TO BE INVESTIGATED

An investigation into the quality of milk being sold in Charlestown stores will be made immediately by the Health Department, according to Dr. William C. Woodward, Boston's new Health Commissioner. This action follows the announcement by the Child Welfare Committee, which has submitted statistics of the recent weighing and measuring campaign, that Charlestown is considerably below the standard in relation to the health of its children. Women from the Charlestown district charge milk being sold to Charlestown mothers was of inferior quality, despite the fact that the price had increased.

SAVE PEACH STONES AND HELP U. S. WIN THE WAR

Help win the war with peach stones! Save them for Uncle Sam, not to be used as missiles, but in an important branch of work that the government keeps secret. Whether you buy "two for five" on a street corner, or a crate to preserve without sugar, dry the stones and carry them to the Food Conservation Booth at Jordan Marsh Company's, first floor, near the Avon street entrance.

WOMEN ENDURE MOST BY HIGH COST LIVING

Minimum Wage Commission Suggests Enforcing Higher Pay for Such Workers

That women wage earners are hit harder by the high cost of living than any other class of workers in the State is the conclusion reached by the Minimum Wage Commission after an investigation of labor and wage conditions. The commission said in a report today:

"The commission has estimated that the cost of living of a wage earning woman in Massachusetts has increased at least 35 per cent. in the period between October, 1915, and October, 1917. On the other hand, inquiry has shown that except in a relatively small number of industries there has been no general increase in wages comparable with the rise in living costs."

The commission concluded with this important statement:

"It may therefore be the duty of the State to follow the war-time example of Europe and Australia, not only in increasing the minimum wage rates already established, but also in extending the scope of its wage regulations to trades and occupations which have never before come under the operation of the Minimum Wage Law."

SAYS STANDARD OF MINISTRY IS RECEDING

That the material for the ministry the past few years has come from rougher background than heretofore, outnumbering greatly those theological students who, scholarly and able, have had also the proper domestic and social training, was the statement made today at the conference of theological schools at Harvard University by Professor Williston Walker of Yale School of Religion. "I realize the churches are contenting themselves—as they ought not to do—with untrained material," he said. "This is especially true of the Western States." Professor Walker declared that a Daniel Webster and Rufus Choate is an impossibility in 1918.

Take a deep drag —what tobacco do you taste?

That smooth, rich fragrance is the sure sign of Turkish. That satisfying "pep" is American. When you get them both, you've got a real cigarette.

No one tobacco grown can give you such a cigarette. That's why, to get the Mecca flavor, they have to select 12 tobaccos, 7 American and 5 Turkish. They mix these 12 tobaccos and then for fifty hours pass moist heat through them all. This is the famous Still-Blend process.

Only in this way can they draw that smooth, rich fragrance of the Turkish leaf into the American, and that satisfying "pep" of the American into the Turkish.

Only in this way can they produce that flavor which has made Mecca the favorite cigarette of over a million smokers.

DEMOCRACY — BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 14, 1918. — LIBERTY

COL. PARMERTER IN COMMAND AT DEVENS

Arrives With 36th Regiment and Is Placed in Temporary Control of Camp

Camp Devens, Aug. 14.—With the arrival of the 36th Regiment from Camp Snelling, Minn., came an order from the War Department appointing Colonel Almon L. Parmerter acting commander of the camp and division in place of Colonel George L. Byroade, who has been in charge the last month.

Colonel Oliver H. Dockery also arrived today from Camp Custer to act as chief of staff, and will replace Lieutenant-Colonel Frank B. Edwards. Colonel Byroade and Lieutenant-Colonel Edwards will return to the depot brigade, from which they came to take temporary charge at headquarters.

Col. Parmerter arrived on the first section of the train bringing companies A and B of the 36th, and today reported at headquarters to assume control until the appointment of a permanent commander.

He is a graduate of West Point and for the last 14 months has had command of the 36th and will complete the organization of the 12th division.

Band Leader Walter E. Scheaffer of the depot brigade was today commissioned a second lieutenant and will visit Salem tonight in his new uniform and wearing his bars of gold. Lieutenant Scheaffer has been at camp since March 21, when he left San Antonio, Texas. He organized the band, which is declared to be the best ever heard in camp. He is a native of Rochester, N. Y., and for seven years was solo clarinetist for Sousa and was a member of Conway's Band of New York. He attended Manlius Military Academy for three years.

Private Leroy H. Ziegler of the Quartermaster's Corps, whose home is in Stockbridge, was taken to the base hospital today suffering from injuries received when thrown from a horse.

EDITORIAL

The work of the city officials of Lowell in ridding the city of vice for the benefit of the soldiers of Devens is commended by camp officials. If other communities withing reach of the cantonment would follow the example of the "Spindle City" there would be less friction between army and civilian authorities.

Soldiers were prohibited from going to Lowell because of conditions and the authorities took the necessary action to remove the objectionable features from the city.

The recent arrest and prosecution of eleven bootleggers was an evidence of their willingness to help, and business in the city will benefit as long as they show that desire.

Let other cities take notice and help the soldier, as a new division is being organized and several thousand men will be training and they must, and will, be protected by the representatives of Uncle Sam.

RADIO MATMEN IN MATCH TO A FINISH

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

U. S. Naval Radio School, Cambridge, Aug. 14.—The next "Happy Hours" at the Radio School is to see one of the liveliest wrestling bouts that has taken place in New England in many months.

Archie Jeannette has challenged Arthur Inness, winner of the last "Happy Hours" bout to a contest to a finish.

The contest will take place in the Hemenway Gymnasium, and although it will be exclusively for Radio boys, it is a safe assertion that there have been few professional matches in Boston that have ever provided more clean sport and interest.

ALBERT F. SEARS, wounded July 8 in France, was once a professional boxer well known in Boston.

Private Sears has been commended for heroism by Chaplain O'Connor of the 101st.

Albert F. Sears, well known throughout Boston as a former professional boxer, was wounded July 8 in France, according to a telegram received from the War Department today by his mother, Mrs. Mary Sears, of No. 320 Saratoga street, East Boston.

"Al" Sears was employed in the Charlestown Navy Yard at the time the United States entered the conflict, and he and his brother immediately enlisted with the "Old Ninth," now a part of the 101st Infantry, and left with the first troops that sailed for France.

Chaplain O'Connor of the 101st has written of the bravery displayed by young Sears and of his success in athletic affairs overseas.

William Sears, his father, is employed in the Quartermaster Division, U. S. A., at Cambridge.

French Fund $392,683.

The American Fund for French Wounded is now $392,683. The two largest contributors on the list issued today by Kidder, Peabody & Co., treasurers, are Miss Ellen G. Cary, $1,000 additional and the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, Boston, $385.93.

CURLEY WILL RUN AGAINST GALLIVAN

Former Mayor Fitzgerald Enters Race Against Congressman Tague

Former Mayor James M. Curley has finally decided to make the run for Congress against Congressman James A. Gallivan.

Nomination papers are in circulation in the district.

The congressional campaign promises a revival of all the bitter antagonisms of the recent mayoralty fight.

While Mr. Curley and Mr. Gallivan are tearing up each other in the South side of the city John F. Fitzgerald and Congressman Peter F. Tague will be doing a catch-as-catch can in the district generally presided over by Martin M. Lomasney.

It is said that Mr. Fitzgerald will be supported by Mr. Lomasney. In that event, Judge Murley, Editor "Jim" Maguire, James H. Brennan and other young statesmen who have "looking the situation over" are expected to retire in favor of Mr. Fitzgerald.

With the fights so numerous—United States Senator, Governor, Congressmen, State Senator, House of Representatives and everything—and with space so tight, the candidates and writers look sorrowfully at each other and say, "Gee, but it's tough."

BRINGS CHARGES AGAINST CHIEF AT MARBLEHEAD

Marblehead, Aug. 14.—The appearance of David J. Love, a former special policeman, to prefer charges against Chief of Police Frank W. Goodwin at a meeting of the local Board of Selectmen today created a sensation. The selectmen refused to make the nature of the charges public.

Special Policeman Love tendered his resignation to the selectmen following the seizure of a truck-load of liquor by Chief Goodwin on or about August 1.

PAWTUCKET MILL HANDS READY TO RESUME WORK

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 14.—Some 6,000 textile strikers at Pawtucket and Cumberland valley factories are ready to return to work pending a decision by the National War Labor Board on their grievances, if an order to that effect is received. The expected intervention by the board is a result of the personal appeal made by International President John Golden of the Textile Workers, following refusal of the mill owners to arbitrate.

SAVES MONEY FOR UNCLE SAM BUT LOSES LIFE

Washington, Aug. 14.—The death of Captain O. J. May of Chicago is officially held to be due to experiments to save the United States government $11,000,000 in purchase of lubricating oil for airplane engines. Captain May became exhausted while conducting labratory tests and died soon afterward. His experiments disclosed a fluid for the Liberty motor to take the place of oil generally used.

TOMORROW we begin our August stocktaking clearance at which we shall dispose of all odd pieces and small lots at sharp reductions. Quantities will be small, but market conditions make the low clearance prices of even more than usual importance.

We have every reason to believe there is nothing in this stocktaking that could be bought at wholesale today at our clearance prices! Why, you may ask, do we mark down merchandise if it cannot be duplicated except at higher prices? We are closing out only the small lots, the odd sizes, the single pieces. In every case where there is a complete assortment we shall continue that merchandise in stock, for it is not good business to sell out, and then buy the same thing over again at higher prices.

Stocktaking begins tomorrow. We want a quick cleanup of these odds and ends. It will be to your advantage to come early

BISHOP BEAVEN WILL ATTEND LOWNEY FUNERAL

Providence, R. I., Aug. 14.—Funeral services for Rt. Rev. Dennis M. Lowney, auxiliary bishop of the Providence diocese of the Catholic Church, who died of heart disease at the Episcopal residence here, will be held on Friday at 10 a. m. at the Cathedral. Bishop Beaven of Springfield, who consecrated Bishop Lowney as auxiliary bishop, and other dignitaries of the church, will officiate. It will be one of the most impressive funerals in the history of Rhode Island, for Bishop Lowney was greatly beloved by his fellow priests and by the poor, among whom he was an indefatigable worker.

MORE THAN 500 DISCHARGED AT LYNN PLANT

General Electric Dismissals in Two Years—Foremen Deny It's Due to Unions

More workers have been discharged from department Second V of the General Electric Company, Lynn, during the last two years than are now employed there, the present personnel numbering 500, according to testimony given today by witnesses in the hearing before the National War Labor Board on the discharge of sixteen employes of the company a week ago last Monday.

Foremen of the department denied that these dismissals, which followed close upon the return to work of 14,000 employes who had been idle for three weeks, were because of union activities, as charged by the workers. It was in this department that charges of pro-Germanism were brought by employes. The hearing took place in Lynn City Hall.

In answer to questions by Chief Examiner Alpheus Winter and Associate Examiner Edwin Newdick as to conditions in the factory which led up to the discharge of the men in question, Frank White testified that after the strikers had returned to work the attitude of the foremen was antagonistic and that no whispering was permitted. He told in detail of the lockout last Wednesday, when a committee of workers went to Frank P. Cox, department head, to protest against the discharge of a young man. According to witness, Cox said to the committee:

"I don't recognize you. Get out."

The committee, he said, went back and reported to the workers at their benches, and immediately afterwards W. J. Lloyd, electrical engineer, prominent in the management of the department, went to a young woman at one of the benches and told her that she would be given a pass. She replied that she did not want a pass as she was working, to which he replied, witness stated:

"You will take one or you will be arrested."

Witness further testified that the committee then notified the girls not to accept passes marked "personal," as that would put upon them the responsibility of leaving during working hours, that passes marked "Company business" were made out by the foremen, who escorted White and the rest of the committee to the gate, and instructed the gate tenders to arrest them if they so much as set foot over the line between the sidewalk and the company property.

LYNN AND REVERE ELKS HAVE A JOINT OUTING

Lynn and Revere Lodges of Elks and their friends held a joint outing today at South Lynnfield, on the estate of "Hap" Ward. The program began at noon with a parade in Lynn, which was repeated at their destination, with "Hap" Ward and Lucy Daly, his wife, leading the column. Athletic sports and field events occupied the afternoon. The proceeds will go toward the Elks' $1,000,000 fund.

13 SLACKERS HOOTED AS THEY LEAVE FOR DEVENS

Thirteen slackers of draft age who had failed to either register or file their questionnaires were arrested by agents of the Department of Justice today and taken to the Federal building. After being questioned, they were taken to Camp Devens, where they were inducted into service. As the slackers were leaving the Federal building they met with hoots and jeers from people on the street.

COTTON REPORT SHOWS INCREASE FOR JULY

Washington, Aug. 14—Census reports show cotton, exclusive of linters, consumed during July 541,792 running bales in 1918, compared with 537,823 in 1917, of which 304,507 bales were consumed in cotton growing States in 1918 and 306,268 in 1917. Linters consumed 106,361 bales in 1918 and 85,733 in 1917. Cotton held in consuming establishments on July 31, 1,465,384 bales in 1918 and 1,501,919 in 1917, and in public storage and at compresses, 1,765,873 bales in 1918 and 888,237 in 1917. Imports, 24,381 equivalent 500-pound bales in 1918 and 10,437 in 1917. Exports, including linters, 218,877 running bales in 1918 and 271,597 in 1917. Cotton spindles active during July, 33,674,896 in 1918, and 33,418,233 in 1917. Linters held in consuming establishments, 138,242 bales in 1918 and 112,972 in 1917 and in public storage and at compresses, 236,118 bales in 1918 and 230,687 in 1917. Linters exported during July, 16,802 bales in 1918 and 19,176 in 1917.

HERO OF TOUL GREETED BY CONVENTION

Young Billerica Soldier Tells Delegates of Battle—Eager to Return to Front.

With his left hand blown off and wearing three gold service stripes, one for special service at the front, Private Charles L. Buckley of North Billerica was loudly cheered by delegates at the Constitutional Convention today, who rose to greet the young man as he was introduced by President John L. Bates. Private Buckley is only eighteen, and in spite of his wounds is impatient to get back to the front with his comrades. He is a member of G Company, 104th Infantry.

He told the delegates how he lost his hand in a battle in the Toul sector:

"The Germans came at us in close formation and we replied with rifle and machine gun fire. I am positive I picked off two or three before they got me. One of them threw a grenade which exploded near me and took off my left hand and tore part of the right side of the man on my left. I was taken to the hospital and given excellent treatment. I am back for a few days, and shall report to Washington. I hope they will send me back with the boys again."

Young Buckley came to the State House with his father, L. W. Buckley and Delegate Buck of the Constitutional Convention. After his introduction to the members, he met Governor McCall and was taken on a tour of inspection of the building.

SHIPYARD WORKER WINS POSTER PRIZE

Stanley R. H. Rogers, a young artist, of No. 145 Forest street, Medford, employed in the mechanical department of the Fore River Shipbuilding plant, has been awarded the second prize of $75 offered in the ship poster competition by the National Service of the United States Shipping Board, with the poster, "United We Stand." There were classes for artists and art students, sailors and soldiers, shipyard and industrial workers, the first prize also being won by another Greater Boston man, Arthur Hutchins, under the title, "On the Firing Line." Mr. Rogers' poster shows a group of three men standing, one a soldier, another a mechanic and the third a sailor, all typifying the spirit of his subject.

"To help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans there is nothing in my experience which I have found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. Nuxated Iron often increases the strength and endurance of weak, nervous, run-down people in two weeks' time. It is now being used by over thre million people annually, including such men as Hon. Leslie M Shaw, formerly Secretary of the Treasury and ex-Governor of Iowa; former United States Senator Richard Rolland Kenney of Delaware, at present Major of the U. S. Army; General John L. Clem (Retired), the drummer boy of Shiloh, who was sergeant in the U. S. Army when only 12 years of age; also United States Judge G. W. Atkinson of the Court of Claims of Washington and others. Nuxated Iron is dispensed by all good druggists everywhere.

There never was a time when the words: "BUY NOW" meant more to you than they do right now.

Our unvarying rule not to carry over clothing from season to season must be maintained—irrespective of conditions confronting the clothing market—foreshadowing 50 to 100 per cent. higher prices.

Looking at the Clothing Situation as it is Today we realize that we are giving up big profits by not holding on to our stocks to dispose of them next season at higher prices, as many merchants do. But, no matter what our losses, we shall stick to our policy not to carry over goods, if reductions will move them.

Shrewd, level-headed men will be quick to take advantage of this August Clothing Clearing.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

ROBSON PROVES A SET-UP FOR TED LEWIS

By RINGSIDE.

Ted (Kid) Lewis, welterweight champion, showed up Tommy Robson of Boston, in their twelve-round bout at the Arena, easily winning Referee Kid McPartland's decision.

The battle was full of rough work, with Robson the chief offender, Lewis was far too clever for the local product and led every inch, foot and yard of the way.

Robson played "possum" a few times, but the Briton was wise and Tommy's efforts went for naught.

They lost little time at the opening bell, rushing into a hard clinch and pulling a lot of rough inside work. Lewis pulled off a back-hander, and Tommy came right back with the same kind of stuff. The second was a rough round, Robson doing fair work at close quarters, with Lewis landing the cleaner blows.

Robson landed a corker in the ninth round to Lewis' face. Ted gave a fine exhibition in this round, ducking a lot of Robson's well-aimed uppercuts.

The twelfth was a busy affair. Robson made a flash, catching Lewis a couple of sweet short right-handers. The latter came back with clean right-handers. They were in the midst of a fine exchange at the bell.

Robson appeared much slower than in his previous bout with Lewis.

Joe Rivers of Gloucester ran into a tough customer in the Jamaica Kid in the eight-round semi-final. They started walloping in the first chapter and kept it up the entire distance. The Kid was about a dozen wallops ahead when it was all over and got the decision from Larry Conley.

Larry Costello of Charlestown and Greek Alger punched each other for six rounds with honors even. Costello started off like a race horse, but the Greek came back in the closing frames.

Bob Josephs had little trouble with Young Leroy. Referee Flaherty stopped it in the second round, Leroy not having a ghost of a show.

TENNIS CRACKS GET BUSY IN THIRD ROUND

Ichiya Kumagae, tennis wizard from the Orient, paired with Harold Taylor of New York, won in the second round in the national doubles, at Longwood. Their opponents were H. I. Taylor and R. Currier and the justly renowned Jap and his mate went over in straight sets, 6—0, 6—3, 7—5.

Fred Alexander and Beals Wright kept up their good work and vanquished J. S. Myrick of Utica, N. Y., and Edwin Sheafe of Longwood. This was another three-set match.

Alex Ier and H. B. O'Boyle of Pelham Bay; Nat Niles of Longwood and Theodore R. Pell of New York; Vincent Richards, sensational New York schoolboy, and William T. Tilden, Jr., of Philadelphia; E. H. Binzen and J. S. O'Boyle, another Pelham Bay pair; J. D. E. Jones, Jr., and R. Dana, those reliables from Providence, and W. T. Hayes and R. H. Burdick of Chicago were the other teams being bracketed.

General interest today centred in the third round match between Kumagae and Taylor and Alexander and Wright. They were carded to start their battle at 3:30 o'clock.

The boys' tournament got underway this morning. There are only three entries—Vincent Richards, J. D. E. Jones, Jr., of Moses Brown School, Providence, and William Ingraham of Woonsocket High School. Jones drew a bye.

The exhibition mixed doubles start tomorrow afternoon. Among those who will be seen in action are Miss Molla Bjurstedt and Fred Alexander, Miss Marion Zinderstein and Walter Merrill Hall and Mrs. G. W. Wightman and Irving C. Wright.

PIANO SALE

Uprights and Players, New and Used

Uprights $125 $150

$175, $225 and Upwards

THE character of the pianos to be sacrificed this month is high — the prices are low—awfully low—so low in fact that your first impression is that I have made a mistake in my price quotations. But I will sell at the prices marked on the sacrifice tags. There is no money in the waiting game for me. My selling plan is one of action. Sell, sell, sell—get the pianos out and get them out quickly—never mind price—never mind profit.

CORBETT'S CORNER

BY JAMES J. CORBETT.

Of how much value is a manager to a major league ball club?

Some experts assert that the success of a ball club depends very largely upon the skill of the manager; others attempt to show that it is the player and not the manager who makes the team.

Frank Chance, at the helm of the Cubs from 1906 to 1910, steered them into four pennants and two world's championships. Chance became hailed as the "peerless leader;" to him was given the lion's share of the credit for the great triumph of the Cubs.

His great resourcefulness, his inspiring leadership, his stern discipline—those were the qualities that the admirers of Chance felt had played the most important parts in the uplift of the Cubs.

"Chance can make any team great" it was said.

Chance, some years later, took the Yankee helm. Great things were expected of the "Peerless Leader." He put into use the same tactics he had used with the wonderful Cubs. And Chance, as a Yankee leader, was a flat failure.

Was it the leadership of Chance from 1906 to 1910—or was it the Tinker - Evers - Steinfeldt-Brown-Ruelback-Kling combination?

NO CREDIT GIVEN PLAYERS.

In 1907, 1908 and 1909, Hughie Jennings lead the Tigers to the very top of the American League. Everywhere Jennings was ranked as a remarkable leader. He was a managerial genius.

The Tigers, as a team, didn't get real credit for the achievement. It was Jennings who did it, not the players, almost everyone said. But in the nine years since then, the Tigers have failed to repeat, although Jennings always has been at the helm.

What's the answer?

Fielder Jones gained undying fame as leader of the "hitless wonders" of 1906. Because the White Sox, with one of the weakest hitting clubs in history, won a pennant and then beat the Cubs in the blue ribbon duel, Jones was acclaimed a marvel. But Jones never won the pennant.

He performed a "comeback" a few years ago, and after a brief sojourn in the Federal League, piloted the Browns. The fans thought Jones would bring a pennant to the Mound City. But the Browns, although aided by the manager who became world-famous a dozen years ago, finished nowhere.

And finally Jones quit in disgust.

McGRAW A REAL LEADER.

Those who incline to the theory that the real success of a ball club depends very largely upon the calibre of the manager, can point only to John McGraw as the real basis for their argument.

He is the only leader who wrecked three different teams and each time came back with a new one just as good—or greater.

Fred Clarke was a splendid leader. At the helm of the Pirates, he guided them to the top in 1901, 1902 and 1903. Then his stars faded and passed out, and Clarke won no more pennants until 1909, when he succeeded in whipping together another great ball club.

But its supremacy was for one year only. Then despite the continued leadership of the brainy, resourceful, fighting Clarke—it skidded from the heights.

Connie Mack gathered together a great team during the early days of the American League and won pennants in 1904 and 1905.

Age soon afterward wrecked that great combination. Undaunted, Mack built anew. And five years later, in 1910, he emerged with his amazing team that was baseball's greatest over a sweep of years.

Fandom praised Mack as one of the greatest leaders in baseball. He was that—no doubt. But when the fans gave to him the bulk of the credit for the Athletics' achievement, didn't they go a trifle too far? Were they entirely fair to the players?

WHERE PRAISE IS DUE.

The Athletics of 1910-1914 might have won without the guidance of Mack—but they certainly couldn't have won without the help of McInnis, Collins, Barry, Baker, Bender, Plank and the other truly greats.

To Mack is given the credit for corraling such great stars—for picking them up from the bushes or the college diamonds. And he deserves that credit.

Those boys were diamonds in the rough. But wasn't it luck that enabled Connie to find them? If it wasn't in part luck, why hasn't Connie discovered others like them in his search of the past four years?

The Athletic chieftain scattered his great team to the four winds after the 1914 season. He decided to build a new and greater team. He confidently expected his purpose would be accomplished in a short time.

But four years have passed—and the Athletics continue as the jokes of baseball. Four years of constant trying, constant experimenting, of many trades, has availed nothing. The Athletics still have Connie Mack—and a tail-end team.

It seems to me, with all due credit to the managers, that the success of a club depends about 90 per cent. upon the players—and 10 per cent. upon the managers.

Knot Does Knot Live Up to Her Name; She Wins Stake at Spa

By ED CURLEY.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Knot did knot live up to her name. Most of the folks that tried to get cool in the hot rays of the sun at this course did knot see how Knot could win.

These kind of people could only see Uncle's Lassie and not any of the others, including Knot. Consequently they climbed aboard the Uncle's Lassie wagon and did knot pay much attention to Knot and the other lady horses. The reason they were all lady horses is that the event was the Kentucky Selling Stakes for lady horses only.

Well, Knot knot only got off well, but went out for a race with Uncle's Lassie. They raced head and head circling the turn, when Uncle's Lassie got caught in a slight jam, which immediately caused McAtee to pull her up.

Right then and there maledictions were profuse directed at Master McAtee. This did not hurt Knot in the least, for she paid knot the slightest attention to Uncle's Lassie being pulled up, but went right on about her business.

Big Four Hits It Up in 50-Mile Event at Beach Saucer

All indications point to a record crowd at the staging of the revenge race at the Revere cycle track tonight. The contest, which is really a restaging of the Golden Wheel race, is over the fifty-mile course and the field includes Victor Linart, winner of the big event; George Wiley, Vincent Madonna and Frank Corry.

Corry's lack of wheels and a bad motor put a crimp in the running of the race last week, and in order to forestall a repetition of these conditions, Manager Nat Butler has notified the riders of both bikes and motors that a system of fines will be handed out by the referee in case of any seeming negligence.

The regular card of amateur and professional events will be run off.

RIVAL SOX IN FIRST BATTLE

Sam Jones and Reb Russell Slab Picks for Today—Eddie Collins Is on Deck

By H. W. LANIGAN.

It is up to the Red Sox to get started on another winning streak, and to do it they must topple over the Chisox, last year's world's champions, if they are to hold on to their lead at the head of the procession.

Cleveland, Tris Speaker, Joe Wood & Co., is only two games behind and Washington is hanging on with startling tenacity.

The rival Sox were to open a three-game series at Fenway Park this afternoon. Clarence Rowland, kid manager of the enemy, remarked early today that he 'lowed he would start Reb Russell, his crack left-hander, against the Barrows.

Mogridge and Robinson, Yankee portsiders, have just got through taming the Fenway troupe, so our artillery must wake up if it's going to flatten the Chisox' best hurling bet. Cicotte, Wolfgang, Benz, Quinn, former Yankees; Shellenback and Mitchell, a kid from Vernon, Cal., are the other twirlers Rowland has in his party.

Eddie Collins, modern day keystone king, is here for the series. He's headed for the navy, which is most proper, and as he played in the Cleveland series, he figures it only proper that he should operate against the Red Sox. So he's in the game until Friday.

Pinelli, a rookie from Sacramento, Cal., is doing the third basing for the Chisox. Gandil and Weaver are on their old jobs. Wilbur Good, who used to pastime here, tops the enemy's swat order, and keeps Liebold and Shano Collins company in the gardens.

Sam Jones, who missed the New York series, was Barrow's nominee for box service.

The series between the Red Sox and Indians, which starts at Fenway Park Saturday, is being looked upon as the deciding battle in the American League pennant race. While this probably will be the all-important test for the Indians, Washington must be considered. Clark Griffith and his right-hand man, Frank Schulte, claim the pennant for the Capitol City.

The double victory of the Senators over the Athletics puts them within striking distance of the goal and brings Boston nearer the brink.

The three clubs line up today with the Red Sox in the lead by two games; Cleveland second and Washington a game and a half behind the Indians.

BRAVES DONATE TWO MORE TO McGRAWITES

New York, Aug. 14.—The Giants wound up their home season by taking two more falls out of the Braves. The Giants won the opener, 5-4, and repeated in the afterpiece, 6-2.

The Braves made a garrison finish in the first game, but didn't quite reach. Trailing 5-0 when they went up in the eighth, they hit up a swat spree and tallied four runs. Both Causey and Demaree were driven to cover, but Big Fred Toney stopped the cannonading.

Today the Braves were to play an exhibition game at Hamilton, Ont. Tomorrow they show at Massillon, O., and then on to St. Louis, where they will resume the championship battling.

Poll Perritt had a cinch in his tiff with Pat Ragan. The series now stands 14-6 in the Giants' favor, with the double-header in Boston Labor Day winding it up.

EDDIE COLLINS TO QUIT AFTER THIS SERIES

Chisox' Captain Will Enter Navy Following Friday's Game—Lauded by Fullerton

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Baseball is not going out in any blaze of glory; rather its funeral procession marches past with the odor of scandal floating astern, so that it is good to be able to speak one good word as the corpse of the professional game (not the sport, mind you, but the business) in interred.

Eddie Collins has been for years one of the greatest of all ball players and one of the greatest second basemen the game ever has had; fit successor to Fred Pfeffer, Bid McPhee, Link Lowe, and Johnny Evers.

He never has been so magnetic as some, being a man of diffidence if not aversion to publicity, and content to show goods on the field and let the rest go.

Collins has decided to go into the navy. He made his decision some time ago and made arrangements quietly, sticking with his club until all hope of the championship was gone.

Then he arranged to go and set the date of his final appearance in White Sox uniform as Friday, August 16.

He decided upon that date because it closed the White Sox series with the Red Sox and because he had played in a series against Cleveland and wanted to play against Boston so that there would be no charge that he favored either team.

Charles Comiskey paid $50,000 for Collins' services and gave him a tremendous salary. Comiskey this Summer raged when his ball players quit his club to slip into shipyards or steel mills. He demanded that the government investigate to learn whether they went to the shipyards to work for their country or to avoid fighting for their country.

Some he ordered out of his ball park as soon as he heard they were going to the shipyards. But when Collins sent word that he was quitting the team August 15 to go into the navy, Comiskey wired his congratulations and sent his best wishes.

Joe Cantillion is going to France to work either for the Y. M. C. A. or Knights of Columbus, and I hereby nominate him to bawl out the Kaiser when this peevishness comes to its proper end. No one can do it better.

Since Joe disposed of his Old Man's home, as they called the Minneapolis club, he has been seeking action against the Kaiser, and now has found it.

The Cantillion "boys," Bill, Mike and Joe, have been big figures in America for years, as the Cantillions were in Ireland when they were kings. Bill was general manager of the Northwestern Railroad, and Mike and Joe, besides their baseball interests have a big plantation and other interests.

On the bench as a "raver" Joe excelled either Comiskey, Stallings or Chance. One day he was going good, addressing an offending ball player:

"You solid skulled, reinforced concrete headed idiot," he said. "If you had twice as much brains as you have you'd be a half-wit——"

He purred on that strain for a time, hitting on all eight, and then suddenly he made a despairing gesture and said:

"Oh, what's the use? If you had half sense you'd be a major leaguer and wouldn't be on my team."

"HOW dare you ask me to give away my secrets?" she replied.

"Listen," he began, striving with an almost painful effort to keep his voice down to the level of a whisper, "you and I together, we could do the most marvelous things. I could let you into all my schemes. They are great. They will be successful. After the war is over——"

He held his breath for a moment. The tramp of approaching footsteps warned him of the coming of an intruder. The captain came to a standstill before their chairs and saluted.

"Miss Van Teyl," he said, "there will be a mutiny in the saloon if you don't come down and sing."

She almost sprang to her feet. The ship was rolling a little, and she laid her fingers upon his arm.

"I meant to come long ago," she declared, "but Mr. Fischer has been so interesting. You will finish telling me your experiences another time, won't you?" she called out over her shoulder. "There is so much that I still want to hear."

Fischer's reply was almost ungracious. He watched their departure in silence, and afterward leaned further back in his chair. With long, nervous fingers he drew a black cigar from his case and lit it. Then he folded his arms. For more than half an hour he sat there motionless, smoking furiously. He looked out into the chaos of the windy darkness, he heard voices riding upon the seas, shrieking and calling to him, voices to which he had been deaf too long. The burden of these later years of turbulent, brazen, selfish struggling, rolled back. He had been a sentimentalist once, a willing seeker after things which seemed to have passed him by. At his age, he told himself, a man should still find more than one place in the world.

CHAPTER IX.

JAMES VAN TEYL glanced curiously at the small, dark figure standing patiently before him, and then back again at the wireless cable which he held in his fingers. He was just back from a tiring day in Wall Street, and was reclining in the most comfortable easy chair of his Hotel Plaza sitting room.

"Gee!" he murmured. "This beats me. The last thing I should have thought we wanted here was a valet. The fellow who looks after this suite has scarcely anything else to do. What did you say your name was?"

"Nikasti, sir."

Van Teyl carefully reconsidered the cable. It certainly seemed to leave no room for misunderstanding.

Please engage for our service, as valet, Nikasti. See that he enters on his duties at once. Hope land this evening. Your sister on board sends love.—F.

"Well that seems clear enough," the young man muttered, thrusting the form into his waistcoat pocket. "You're here to stay, I guess, Nikasti? I see you've brought your kit along."

"In case you decided to engage me, sir" the man replied.

"Oh, you are engaged right enough," Van Teyl assured him. "You'd better make the best job you can of putting out my evening clothes. If you ring for the floor valet, he'll help you. The bedrooms are through that door."

"Very good, sir!"

"I am going down to the barber's now," Van Teyl continued, rising to his feet. "Just remember this, Nikasti—what a name, by the bye!"

"I could be called Kato," the man suggested.

"Kato for me all the time," his prospective employer agreed. "Well, listen. My sister, Miss Van Teyl, arrives from Europe on the Lapland this evening. If she comes in or rings up, say I'm here and I want to see her at once. You understand?"

"I understand, sir."

Van Teyl strolled out, and Kato disappeared into the inner room. The floor valet, dressed in the dark blue livery of the hotel, was already laying out his master's dinner clothes. He eyed the intruder a little truculently.

"Who are you, anyway?" he inquired.

"My name is Nikasti," was the quiet reply. "Mr. Van Teyl has engaged me as his valet, to wait upon him and Mr. Fischer."

The man laid down the shirt into which he was fixing the studs.

"That's some news," he remarked bitterly.

"To wait on Mr. Van Teyl and Mr. Fischer, eh? What the hell do they want you for?"

Nikasti shook his head slowly. He was very small, and his dark eyes seemed filled with melancholy.

"It is not for a very long time," he ventured.

"Long enough to do me out of my five dollars' tip every week," the man grumbled. "I'm a married man, too, and a good American. Blast you fellows, coming and taking our jobs away! Can't think what they let you into the country for."

"I am sorry," Nikasti murmured.

"Your sorrow don't bring me in my five dollars," the valet retorted bitterly. "There's only two suites on this floor to work for, anyway, and this is the only one worth a cent."

Chapin Tells His Son Not to Be a Fool and Show That He Suspects Anything

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XXIX.—Continued

SHE had botched matters, Clifford realized as he heard the ridiculous request. Without a word of demur, the girl arose.

"Let me go and move it for you," she suggested.

"Oh, no, I'd rather go with you," the matron insisted.

As the pair went into the house, Butler walked to the end of the veranda.

"It's clouding over thickly," he commented. "We'll have rain soon."

Chapin turned to his son. "What's up?" he asked in a low voice. "Don't be a fool, Cliff, and show that you suspect anything about Wade's sister. He has a reason for keeping her here, and under present circumstances it's my play to keep on the right side of him."

"His sister!" Clifford scoffed, but so softly that Butler, at the end of the veranda, did not hear him. "Tell that to the Marines!"

"What do you mean?" Amos began, but checked himself as Butler returned and sat down.

The son of the house appreciated that he would have no chance for a word with Butler unless he spoke quickly. His father's attitude puzzled him. Husband and wife had been party to the scheme that Wade had forced upon them. He hated to shock his mother by letting her guess the truth.

There was a better plan than this. If Butler knew what Wade had done, he would soon tell the physician what he thought of him. A row would ensue. When Wade learned that his duplicity was recognized, he would remove his so-called sister from the farm. The desired end would be accomplished without the Chapins' seeming interference. Therefore Wade would not vent his spite on Amos.

Clifford smiled as he mused on his own cleverness. This was surely a masterly stroke that he was planning. But how have a word with Butler without making his ulterior motive too obvious?

As if in reply to his question, his mother called from the house.

"Amos! will you come here and see what ails this lamp, please?"

Clifford knew this was but a ruse on his mother's part to get his father out of his way for a moment. As Amos obeyed the summons, the son took advantage of the chance thus afforded him.

"I say," he said impulsively to Butler, "don't you want to go for a walk, tonight."

"I always go for a walk before I go to bed," John replied. "Why do you ask?"

"Well," Clifford tried to speak casually, "I was wondering if you wouldn't ride a mile or so down the road with me when I go. I want to talk over a little business matter with you—something I have just been thinking about. Can you make it?"

"Why, yes," he said slowly, as if puzzled at the request, "I am going for a walk anyway. I may as well drive with you, if you wish it, down to the Four Corners, and walk back home."

"All right. It's about time I was off, too," Clifford announced, rising and stretching.

"I guess I'll go in and tell the folks good-bye," he remarked. "I'll be out in a minute.

"Mother!" he called as he entered the house. "It's time I was starting."

Martha Chapin hurried out of the kitchen where she was talking with Elizabeth.

"Oh, Cliff, dear, are you going so soon?" she protested.

"I must," her son informed her. "You never can tell but what you'll get a puncture or a breakdown of some kind when you're driving a car that don't belong to you. And it won't do for me to lose my train for the West tonight. You see, I've got to take the car around to the Midland garage and leave it there—then walk to the station. By the way, Butler's going a little way with me, then he'll walk back. He's strong on this walking business, you know," he added, with a laugh that he tried to make sound natural.

Renovating Clothes

By RITA STUYVESANT

BY this time of the Summer many women find that their clothes are beginning to look a bit shabby, especially those which were purchased in May and June. And yet it does seem a little early to look for a Fall frock and velvet hat. For the in-between season, it is wise to hesitate about purchasing new styles, until you really know those that are here to stay and meanwhile to renovate your Summer frocks for the last few weeks of warm weather.

Perhaps that sailor hat you bought when they were so popular a few months ago, is faded from the sun and does not look altogether smart, as a sailor should. A pretty red sailor that had faded to a "nasty" rose shade received a new lease on life by re-coloring the hat. Cardinal red dye especially prepared for hats was purchased at the drug store for twenty-five cents.

The band was removed from the hat and the straw carefully brushed with a stiff hat-brush. Then it was re-colored with the lye, all over, and allowed to dry for about an hour. As the hat cannot be laid down while drying, it was placed on the top of a clothes-tree. When dry the hat was as bright and shiny as new.

A new hatband of white-corded ribbon about two inches wide was used and tied into a pert little bow at the right side. You scarcely could tell the "sailor" from new, and still there was plenty of the dye left to renew the hat several times.

Hats of natural-colored straw may either be cleaned or dyed a different color. One white "pineapple" straw hat that was very much soiled was dyed a navy blue and trimmed with a new polka-dot band.

Frocks that have become faded or dull may be bleached out white and worn with gay-colored sweaters. A clever woman, who always looks smart, confided in me that she had bought no clothes this Summer, except three bright sweaters, two of which were sleeveless.

She gathered up all her flowered, striped and figured frocks of voile, lawn and linen and boiled them until they were perfectly white. A pinch of chloride of lime in the boiler helps to make them "spotless."

The "white" dresses worn with the sweaters kept her fresh and dainty all Summer.

But if you have a few white frocks that you are "tired" of wearing, you could tint them any of the delicate shades that are being shown in the organdie frocks this season—ciel, shell pink, corn color, lettuce green or lilac.

No boiling is necessary, simply dip the garments up and down in a pan of dye solution. A prepared powder can be purchased and dissolved in about a gallon of water. This is guaranteed not to run and is excellent for all tinting purposes.

If you want to retain your early Summer freshness, you should look over your clothes with an eye to renewing their charm.

"Some" Gun

A British soldier met an American soldier in the Strand, and a conversation ensued during which the absorbing topic of the day cropped up.

"What do you think of Fritz's big gun that's shelling Paris?" asked the Briton.

"Oh, not much," said the American.

"But come," said the Briton, "it's a pretty tidy gun that can put a shell over seventy miles."

"Oh, that's nothing," retorted the American. "Jest you wait a bit. We're making a gun in Chicago that can put it in the shade. The first time we fire it the gun crew are getting a fortnight's leave to wait for the recoil!"

To Ward Off Summer Complexion Ills

To keep the face smooth, white and beautiful all summer, there's nothing quite so good as ordinary mercolized wax. Discolored or freckled skin, so common at this season, is gently, gradually absorbed by the wax and replaced by the newer, fresher skin beneath. The face exhibits no trace of the wax, which is applied at bedtime and washed off mornings. Greasy creams, powders and rouges, on the other hand, are apt to appear more conspicuous than usual these days of excessive perspiration. Just get an ounce of mercolized wax at any drugstore and use it like cold cream. This will help any skin at once and in a week or so the complexion will look remarkably clear, young and healthy.—Advertisement.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—

The enormous demand for linen for covering aeroplane wings is rapidly absorbing the visible supplies of the world, and it may be years before this material can be bought at a reasonable price.

There is a very interesting orchid in Java, the grammatophyllum, all the flowers of which open at once, and they also all wither together.

Foolish Things Women Do

Women put ammonia into the water when washing their hair. This not only turns the hair grey, but has a deadly effect upon the hair roots. It makes the hair thin and lifeless. Any tonic or invigorator containing alcohol is also dangerous. Most soaps and shampoos contain too much alkali, and people who use them run the risk and danger of losing their hair. The best thing to use is a fine neutral soap, combined with Glycerin, Cocoanut Oil, White of Eggs and Salicylic Acid. These are the ingredients used in Birt's Head Wash, which is an absolutely reliable preparation, because it does not contain any ammonia, alcohol or free alkali. It makes the hair soft and glossy, and removes scales and dandruff.—Advertisement.

Skin Troubles

People who have itched and scratched for years get peaceful sleep and rest through the use of Cadum Ointment. It stops the itching at once and is very soothing and healing wherever the skin is irritated or inflamed. Much suffering from skin troubles may be avoided by the timely use of this wonderful remedy which is different from anything else. Cadum Ointment is good for eczema, pimples, blotches, itch, tetter, scaly skin, eruptions, chafings, piles, rash, sores, scabs, ringworm, cuts, insect bites, etc.

Chatham Mermaid Coming to Show What Cape Cod Girls Can Do

Fill Blanks, Girls, and Join in Big Swimming Race

NAME ....

AGE ....

ADDRESS ....

From the sand dunes of Cape Cod comes word that the mermaids there are spending the greater part of their time in the water getting in shape for the big Boston AMERICAN swim in the Charles River Basin Saturday afternoon, August 24.

Miss Stella Ellis of Chatham, in the Cape Cod section, read in this column that Betty Russell of sunny California intended to swim away with the first prize and the championship the day of the race. This evidently gave Miss Ellis and her friends a rise in temperature.

Miss Ellis penned the following to the Swimming Editor:

"So Betty Russell thinks she can beat the New England girls in the great race the Boston AMERICAN is running for us! I guess she has not heard of the mermaids from the Cape. I can safely say I spend the greater part of my life in the water.

"Girls, it is up to us to win and show the Boston AMERICAN we appreciate what it is doing for us. We won't let any stranger take the honors.

"My home is Chatham, Cape Cod. Thanking the Boston AMERICAN for a chance to show what the Cape Cod girls can do, I remain,

"STELLA ELLIS."

Entries are still pouring in, and the indication points to a record-breaking gathering of swimmers. The more that get in the merrier it will be, and the more excitement and enthusiasm will be created. The five prizes are magnificent. So are the medals which will be distributed to each girl who finishes. But ten days more, girls. Better get in the swim. Don't fail. Fill out a coupon and send it to the Swimming Editor, No. 20 Summer street, Boston.

Recent entries:

SUGGEST MANY NAMES FOR AMERICAN AVIATORS

The war, experts say, is to be settled in the air.

The Allies and the Central Powers are apparently engaged in a see-saw battle on the western front.

The nation that can build airships the fastest and send them over the enemy lines will win.

That nation is the U. S. A.

The men who are engaged in this, the most hazardous, the most trying, of all the work that is being done by the military service of the United States, are asking for a significant name.

AMERICAN readers will furnish it. Here are some of their suggestions:

"Hawkeyed - Birds" — Mrs. F. D. Graves, No. 73 Aborn street, Peabody.

"American Sea-Gull Eagles"—E. L. Parsons, No. 28 Winslow street, Everett.

"Good-morning boys"—N. L. Jonakos, Salem.

"American Sky-scrapers"— M. A. Bullard, No. 31 Thornley street, Pawtucket, R. I.

"Swallows"—John H. Sullivan, No. 9 Mt. Vernon street, Dorchester.

"Northern Lights of the U. S. A."—Martin J. Etheridge, No. 46 Providence street, Providence, R. I.

Every airman in the service of the country is interested in the AMERICAN'S suggestion that a proper designation shall be provided them. Keep on sending in suggestions.

FILMS SHOW AMERICAN RAILROADING IN FRANCE

The scenes behind the lines are even more intensely interesting in "America's 'Answer,'" the latest government film which is now on view at the Majestic Theatre than they were in "Pershing's Crusaders." Assembling American locomotives in American machine shops in France was a scene which created considerable interest. It revealed to many people, who didn't know, how complete the organization of the American army abroad has become. An American railroad with American rolling stock has been built from a French port given to the United States to the battle line in Alsace. Engines and cars have been going over from here in a rapidly-increasing volume and to afford closer packing they have been transported in sections and the work of assembling done on the other side by skilled men from the Baldwin shops.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY of NEW YORK

PEGGY WOOD, leading lady in "Maytime," whose role calls for versatility with capital "V."

FOUR DISTINCT PARTS PLAYED BY MISS WOOD

By FRED J. McISAAC.

One of the jobs of Peggy Wood's press agent is to inspect all candy, flowers and other sorts of testimonials which come to the young actress who, if not the star, is at least the "twinkle" of "Maytime," the dainty operetta now at the Shubert.

You see Peggy has a part which makes all the other actresses in the United States bite their handkerchiefs, kick out the toes of their slippers and roll over on the floor with envy.

If she got sick or anything they wouldn't have to use an understudy; just let it be known, and all the other young actresses would jump their contracts wherever they might happen to be and apply for the job.

To a layman like myself who happened behind at the Shubert and saw Miss Wood making up it looks like a very hard job. When she isn't on the stage she is working like a coal miner changing her costumes and appearance.

SOME CHANCE, TOO.

"But that's nothing," says Miss Wood with sparkling eyes. "Just think of the chance I've got to act."

And what a chance she has got. In the first act she is a maid of sixteen, innocent, kittenish, but not so very coy. In the second act fifteen Winters have passed over her head and she is a worldly woman in her thirties, frivolous and a bit hard.

Act three reveals her as very antique, toddling around, a frail little figure with white hair, who is about to be chucked out of her home. And in act four she plays her own granddaughter, and is a clever young business girl of the present day. Doesn't that call for versatality? It does. Histrionism? Yes. Personality? Oodles of it.

When you come to think of it there are not so many actresses who could play these four parts with sufficient contrasts.

Yet it's only a few seasons that Miss Wood was one of the merry and bright chorus ladies in "Naughty Marietta." Later she played in "Hello, Broadway," having achieved a small part; then George Cohan used her in the leading role of "Young America," and next she appeared in "Love o' Mike."

REQUEST GRANTED.

"It was while I was playing in that piece that I heard of this marvelous part in 'Maytime,'" explained Miss Wood. "I took my nerve with me and went to Mr. Shubert and applied for the part.

"I am afraid you couldn't do the old woman," he answered. "You might be all right in the other roles."

"I'll learn how to play such a part," I answered, "if you'll give me a few weeks' leave of absence from 'Love o' Mike.'

"It was granted and I joined the John Craig stock company here in Boston, where I learned much about makeup and acting mature and elderly roles. I went back, convinced Mr. Shubert that I could play an old lady, and got the inside track for the part. Nobody expected 'Maytime' would be the tremendous success it has been or I might have had stronger competition. It is by far the best role I ever had, and I do love it."

Miss Wood and her aunt have settled themselves for quite a stay in Boston and have taken an apartment in the Fenway.

TO INVESTIGATE PAY RAISE OF TELEGRAPHERS

Washington, Aug. 14.—Wage increases announced by the Western Union for members of the employes association organized by its officials in opposition to the Commercial Telegraphers Union, but refused to members of the union doing the same work, will be investigated by the wire control committee of the Postoffice Department.

The Western Union's announcement was that it was granting a 10 per cent. increase to members of its association after a conference with the wire control committee. The wire committee says that the increase may come after the conference in time, but that it is not a result of the conference. No such proposition was suggested to the committee, members say.

The Western Union smashed another point in President Wilson's labor policy by its action. His proclamation says "equal pay for equal work," but the Western Union proposes to pay members of its office association 10 per cent. more for the same work than it pays union men.

USE CAPTURED WAR GOODS IN LOAN DRIVE

Two trains containing captured German war material will be sent over New England in the campaign for the fighting fourth Liberty Loan. The drive begins September 28 and will continue at high speed for three weeks.

In Massachusetts the leaders of the forthcoming campaign are already hard at work. Every county in the State was represented at the latest meeting of the County Liberty Loan Committee, at which James Nowell of Boston presided.

Charles A. Morss, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank, recommended an intensive campaign, pointing out the necessity of selling a much larger volume of bonds than in either of the previous campaigns; that it was a business transaction and the people of the New England district should recognize the desirability of accomplishing it as quickly and as economicaly as possible.

N. Penrose Hallowell, executive chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee, urged that the bonds be sold and New England's quota be reached before the last day of the campaign.

James Dean, chairman of the distribution committee, urged the prompt organization of all local committees well in advance of the beginning of the loan.

John R. Macomber, vice-executive chairman, stated that if the loan is to be for six billion dollars and New England's allotment is 8 1-3 per cent. that the quota for this district will be $500,000,000, of which Massachusetts will be called upon to sell five-eighths, or, roughly speaking, $312,000,000.

Philip S. Dalton, chairman of the speakers' bureau, outlined the proposed work of the speakers' bureau, describing the war exhibit trains, which will be sent throughout the district exhibiting captured German war material and American war equipment.

John K. Allen, chairman of the publicity committee, outlined a vigorous publicity campaign which is being prepared to back up the efforts of the local chairmen.

Re-Upholstering and Repairing

SAVE Retailers' Profits. We are agents for the mills. In order to sell upholstery goods at wholesale prices direct to private parties we eliminate our profits on the labor. We charge $8.00 to re-upholster any ordinary five-piece parlor set, frames polished, springs fixed; no extra charge for stock. Don't miss this opportunity and save at least 45 per cent. We also do cabinet work, furniture refinishing and French polishing, a thing almost unknown in the U. S.

Constitutional Convention and Biennial Elections

The Wisdom of Submitting the Amendment Questioned

Before final action on the biennial amendment, the members of the Constitutional Convention could do well to ponder carefully the following editorial, which we reprint from our neighbor, the Post.

So far, the convention has been careful to submit to the people only such changes in the constitution as have long been desired by forward-looking citizens of all parties, and the overwhelming endorsement at the polls of the amendments already voted upon has borne witness to the soundness of its judgment. It would seem to be a pity to mar the record by submitting any proposal which, after many years of popular discussion, is still opposed by so many intelligent and progressive voters that its ratification at the polls, to say the least, is extremely doubtful:

If the Constitutional Convention finally passes the question of biennial gubernatorial elections or biennial sessions of the Legislature, we have strong faith that the people of Massachusetts will sit upon the scheme as vigorously as they did in 1896, when they beat the proposition by 50,000 votes.

There are no more good arguments for biennials now than there were then—fewer, if anything. This is an age when the people want to keep pretty strict tabs on their servants in the Legislature—and they can do it in no better way than by the annual election, which is in every essential a chance for recall without the bothersome features of that system as it is practiced elsewhere. The same reasoning holds as to their Governor. And the educational value of the yearly campaigns as regards government is more important now than ever before.

The argument that Governor and legislators ought to have two-year terms because they can hardly get used to the duties of their positions in one year has no force. We continually give Governors three terms, while members of the Legislature, if they do well, are often continued year after year. If they do not do well, a year is enough for them.

If the proposition should come before the voters next Fall, the Post will endeavor to the best of its ability to convince the people that it should be defeated.

The Lesson Seen in Russia

Professor Ross Points Out the Warning in "Russia in Upheaval"

Copyright, 1918, Star Company.

Professor Edward L. Ross, of the University of Wisconsin, probably the leading American university in the department of social and political science, has given us the result of his study of Russia in the course of 20,000 miles of traveling in Russia. His book is entitled "Russia in Upheaval."

Professor Ross applies the lessons of the Russian revolution to America in this language:

> Let it not be supposed that the United States, with its qualified POLITICAL democracy, will prove immune to anti-capitalistic agitation. The fact is that our society is one of the most vulnerable BECAUSE WE HAVE CLUNG SO LONG TO THE LAW AND THE POLITICS OF AN OUTWORN INDIVIDUALISM THAT THE RESULTING DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH AND INCOME would be grotesque if it were not so tragic. * * *

Professor Ross continues in these significant words:

> In view of the plight in which labor will find itself in America after the war, we cannot hope to insure ourselves against a disastrous reverberation from the Russian Revolution unless we so accelerate our social evolution that the edge will be taken off the just sense of grievance of wage-earners. There is no contenting of all; but it is possible to make the majority feel that their interests are too well looked after for them to risk tossing a monkey-wrench into the machinery of industry. To this end our adoption of ameliorative policies for labor ought to be many times prompter and heartier than it is. We ought every three or four years to register as much progress as we have made since 1908. It is time to recognize that the day of industrial autocracy is past.
>
> The labor-fighting, labor-crushing policies which many employers' associations delight in are an anachronism, and those who persist in them should be tolerated about as long as smokers are tolerated in a powder factory. The normal means by which workers protect themselves from exploitation is collective bargaining, which presupposes the union. The fact that only sixteen per cent. of American wage-earners are in unions has no doubt a great deal to do with the sinister tendency in recent years toward lower wages and bigger returns to capital. In the production of resentment it makes very little difference whether the workingmen are deprived of the right to organize by the government of a Czar or by employers' associations. The economic effect is the same.
>
> The ruthless "hire and fire" practices of American industry should be replaced by decent methods considerate of the interests and feelings of the employes. Co-operation should be welcomed as the natural and reasonable thing. All the aspects of a business which concerns labor should be considered by joint boards, in which employer and employe have equal representation. Means should be employed which will give wage-earners an interest in the prosperity of the concern. Only by some such right-about face on the part of American capitalists will it be possible to avert a calamitous class-strife which will shatter the foundations of our national prosperity.

The intellectuals of the middle class, those who produce with their brains and who neither receive nor expect more than their fair share of society's yearly product, and who are constantly victimized and plundered in their investments by the predatory and parastical elements, and yet who have always been submerged in a cataclysm of the classes, like the Russian revolution, these intellectuals ought to take heed. The power lies in them to control the future of America. They are guilty of the unjust conditions in this country only by their failure to recognize and to oppose them.

"USONIA" IS SUGGESTED FOR THE U. S. A.

Major Murray Baldwin,
U. S. A., Q. M. C.

IT has been repeatedly remarked by Americans who have traveled abroad that it is a source of embarrassment that the word America and the proper adjective American are not accepted as indicating the United States of North America and a citizen of that country.

Although so used by us, these words are not so used abroad and foreigners cannot be compelled to accept our interpretation. The word America is after all only a geographical expression. Columbia is already appropriated by a sister republic. The phrase a "Citizen of the United States" is too long, while Unitedstatesian as a proper adjective is intolerably harsh.

The designation United States is not sufficiently specific, as the official title of Mexico is the "United States of Mexico," and a similar statement may be made about most of the Latin-American republics.

Why not, therefore, apply to this problem the method of industrial life and which during the greatest war in history has received additional impetus.

"Everybody knows that Anzac means the "Australian-New Zealand Army Corps."

Therefore, let us take from UNITED STATES OF NORTH AMERICA the letters appearing in heavier type and we have "Usonia" as the name of our nation and "Usonian" as the proper adjective is the natural derivation therefrom.

It will be observed that the letter "I" appears, which is not exactly in consonance with the examples cited, but it is necessary for euphony, as Usona is difficult to pronounce. The letter "I" appears in America and its insertion makes but a slight deviation from the accepted practice, while if it is left out the word Usona is not only difficult to pronounce, but is too lacking in smoothness and euphony.

If this were done the words "Made in Usonia" in the markets of the world after the war could have but one interpretation, as likewise "I am a Usonian."

The need of some coined word for this purpose will be a very real one after the war is won and the sooner introduced the better. In the language of a popular light opera, "If eventually, why not now."

Italians Use Aerial Tank on a Cable

AN aerial tank has been invented and put into practical use by the Alpini, Italian soldiers who have astounded the world by their extraordinary feats in mountain warfare. An Austrian machine gun emplacement was so situated on a mountain side that it poured a harassing fire into an Italian post. The Austrian position was unassailable by ordinary means, but according to the Corriere della Sera of Milan, it was absolutely necessary that it be wiped out.

A "Teleferica" car, many of which are operated by the Italians across chasms and up mountain sides, was armored and equipped with machine guns. Volunteers were called for, and from the many who responded two were chosen to man the guns. This improvised aerial dreadnought was then swung out across the valley. After one or two exploration trips at a dizzy height the men in the car finally located the Austrian post and quickly put it out of action with well directed fire.

MASCULINE NATURE IS TO SHOW OFF

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

I DID not know why, but as I glanced through a letter in a round, schoolgirl hand which lay upon my desk my mind reverted involuntarily to a village in which I once spent several months. It was before the days of motion pictures, and the only attraction was with the Apollo-like leading man of a ten, twent' and thirt' repertoire company appearing at the end of the third act to make his nightly announcement.

"And on Saturday awfternoon, ladees and gentlemen, we will give a special matinee for the ladies and children, at which time we will present, by special request, 'East Lynne,' with appropriate scenery and the full strength of the company. The prices remain the same—ten, twenty and thirty cents."

Regular Diet

There was never any change in that announcement. Always on Saturday afternoon the bill was "East Lynne," and always the house was packed with eager girls and women, each carrying her handkerchief conveniently within reach. Almost any one in the audience could have prompted the actors had they stumbled in their lines, I am sure; yet the sticky sentimentality of the hackneyed old play never seemed to grow stale. The "ladies and children" continued—and perhaps may still continue—to weep over the sorrows of Lady Isabel and shudder gloatingly at the crafty deviltry of Francis Levison.

Ah, that was the magnet that drew 'em—Sir Francis, with his curled mustaches and sinister graces and shiny silk hat and inevitable cigarette. Every woman there, from fifteen to fifty—maid, wife, or widow—pictured herself as the hapless Lady Isabel, and secretly wondered whether she would have the strength to resist the arts of so engaging and debonair a villain. Vicariously they all thrilled to the lure of danger.

I had supposed, though, that the handsome scapegrace as a type dear to the feminine heart—the brotherhood of Lovelace and St. Elmo and Bertie Cecil—had somewhat gone out of fashion. In these days when woman is demanding an active rather than a passive role, it had struck me that a more favored creation was the vampire lady of the movies; to pose in one's dreams as the slant-eyed Circe luring men to their ruin was preferred to serving merely as a fluttering victim.

And perhaps this is true of those who have reached more sophisticated years; but "Sixteen," I find, still clings to its melodramatic idols. It wants to recoil shrinkingly from the wiles of a Francis Levison, the more insidious and designing the better. And the proof of it lies in the schoolgirl letter which I have before me.

Not in what it says. Oh, no! But in what I read between its lines.

Bloom of Age

She is sixteen, she writes. Recently her imagination has been intrigued by some of her girl friends with dark tales regarding the boys of her acquaintance. She is shocked and disgusted by these revelations. Can such stories be true? she asks. Oh, Mrs. Woodrow, tell me they are not true!

Calm yourself, my child. The stories are not true. I assert that boldly and with absolute conviction; for, although I have no acquaintance with the particular boys to whom you refer, I have a knowledge of the masculine nature in general. And from the cradle to the grave one of its strongest passions is to "show off" for the benefit of the opposite sex.
